Knowledge of BHB History	8 I didn't explore this much but she at least knew about BHB's aggressive litigation style and said she read some briefs.	8 Seemed familiar with our practice and litigation style and said she had read our briefs.	9	9	6 Seemed like she knew about the firm, the kind of work we do, and general style. Was not super familiar with our work beyond generalist commercial lit.	7 Did not give any indication that she did extra research on us. I would have liked to have seen more than just an understanding that we are a boutique	7.83

Quality of Questions about your experience	7 Nothing earth shattering but asked if I got what I was looking for when I came; how I adjusted to BHB's litigating style.	7	9	10	6 Normal questions about culture, what it's like as an associate. Asked specifically about the level of client interaction and ownership for associates.	8 Fine. Basic questions.	7.83

Intellectual engine / smarts?	10 Very smart, ambitious, confident	8	10 Very smart and articulate – easy to talk to, poised and polished.	10	7 Came across as being smart and very capable. Definitely competitive, said she wants to make partner, etc.	10 She decided to go to NY from Toronto when most of her classmates stay in Toronto. She went to NY to be in the heart of litigation and is super hungry for more opportunities. She was given a pro bono case that was 100% hers and she won.	9.17

Relevant experience related to positions	9 Has done what we do, though large recent focus on bankruptcy	7 Said she had a good amount of stand up and motion practice experience (from doing bankruptcy litigation)	7 Seems to have had a ton of really substantive experience leading complex teams – but also hasn't had much on-her-feet experience. Not unexpected given her class year.	7 A lot of her experience is in bankruptcy matters, which she said she enjoys. I advised that it's not a core part of what we do which she said she understood	8 Good experience at S&C. I'm confident she's ready to come here and have more ownership and produce good work product.	8 Her bankruptcy work has gotten her the closest to litigation and she argued and lead a pro bono case.	7.67

Ability to describe substantive experience	10 Articulate and knowledgeable about her cases	7 We didn't go too deep into the nitty aritty of her cases	8	9	7 Was able to describe her cases at a high level, not any better or worse than I'd expect. Mine conversation with her was the social so not shocking that she was less descriptive of her matters in a nitty gritty way, and I didn't push her on it too much.	10	8.50

Nervous / awkward?	8 Not nervous, not awkward, possibly a bit boring. But definitely comfortable	10	10	9 Not awkward or nervous, and quite personable, but not great on eye contact during conversation	7 She is not nervous or awkward. Well-spoken. Definitely confident, perhaps a little too much.	10	9.00

Rationale for interest in BHB	8 Wants to develop her experience.	9 Wants to do civil litigation, trial work, and get more stand up experience	9	10 Looking for more standup experience/reps; likes the idea of aggressive firm	7 Normal pitch. Wants more ownership over her cases, wants to go to trial, wants to take depositions.	10	8.83

Trust to represent BHB in court with clients?	10 No issue at all	9 Seemed confident and oversonable	9	8	7 I would feel comfortable with her on a client call.	10	8.83

Would you enjoy working with candidate?	9 Yes, she seems like a proactive and responsible associate who knows how to work well with associates and partners.	7	7	9	7 The biggest thing to me is that she seems like she would be a value add member of a team, capable of doing the work, won't be dead weight, etc. She does seem competitive but perhaps in a bad way, where she might not be the easiest team player.	10	8.17

Red flags / unusual behavior (0 for red flag, 10 for no red flags)	9 Not really. The only possibly negative personality traits I noticed were boring and a large ego, but both are probably assets in this job and neither concern me in terms of extending an offer.	10	10	9 Only the bankruptcy point noted above	5 She mentioned multiple times that she wants to go somewhere that litigates more aggressively than S&C. I don't think that's bad necessarily, but I think it's a weird way to frame it as a 3rd year associate to say you want a more aggressive style. It's one thing to want more ownership over work, more hands on "lawyering" experience vs. being a face in the crowd at a big firm. But repeating multiple times that you think S&C is stylistically too conservative for you and you want to be more aggressive is a little strange. Happy to explain my reaction here in more detail if needed.	10 She comes across as very hungry, very poised. Easy to talk to.	8.83
